Using Photoshop can be very intimidating if you haven't worked with it before. There are tons of different tools to learn and confusing menus to understand. Here is a beginner Photoshop tutorial to help you learn how to use Photoshop the right way.

Start Photoshop If you just purchased Photoshop you can start using the software immediately. Start by creating a new document. Use the File New menu in the upper left corner of the screen to create a new document. Alternatively, you can right click on the canvas and select New. Next, there are three main areas to focus on when creating your first image. The Layer panel in the upper left, the Photo-saved area in the upper middle, and the Properties panel to the lower right. Using the Layer Panel This is the place to start any image editing project. With the Canvas in the background there are three main Layer palettes you'll be working with. The Background Layer can be set to a black or white area of the image (the background). Make sure it's a transparent layer if you want to see the content underneath (white) or check the checkbox to the left of the Background Layer to convert it to a mask. Next, select the Type tool on the left side of the Layer palette. Click and drag around the image, making sure there are no pixels selected when you do so. The white pixels will be highlighted while black pixels won't be. Photoshop also has a Bitmap Rectangular tool under the Type tool. Use that tool to select a rectangle with no pixels selected in it. Photoshop will know that you are about to make a mask and will add it to the Layer below the Type tool. Finally, if you have black and white areas that you want to use as shapes, you can turn them into a new layer mask in the Layer palette. Select the Brush tool and drag it over the black area. The pixels you selected from the black area will be selected in the Layer mask and the black area of the image is now outlined by transparent pixels in the layer mask. The next steps are where the magic of Photoshop happens. Use the Type tool to select a font, such as a headline. Change the type color from black to white and select text. Photoshop will automatically turn the black text into white and fill in the text with black. Another easy way to create text is to add a new layer with

Q: What are some culturally significant places to photograph in London? London has more than its fair share of history, culture, and architecture. I'd be interested in finding out if there are some really unique places to photograph just so I can share those images with my friends back home. News August 22, 2014 How Much Does the Line Cost? Wednesday night, members of BC's First Nations community marched for a square mile of new housing to be built on the South Side of Vancouver, known as Metrotown. News of the housing plan, combined with recent breakneck growth in Vancouver, have created such demand for housing that thousands of people have been left to play musical chairs with keys to hundreds of new houses. The homeownership story in Vancouver is a great one – the waiting list is decades long and the average price is about $1.2 million. In fact, housing prices are set to jump 20 to 30% in the next few years. We can say with absolute certainty that for every home that is sold in Vancouver, a greater number of people are priced out, and are stuck in expensive rentals for the rest of their lives. It's not all bad news, though. One person's problem is another's opportunity. The current land grab, combined with extraordinarily healthy economic conditions (backed by a strong labour market), means many people are beginning to take advantage of the relatively cheap cost of housing. In fact, over the past 10 years, Vancouver has seen one of the biggest increases in housing supply in the world. Every year, for instance, more than 100,000 people move into the city, and another 300,000 move out. At the same time, the city sees a reduction in median home prices. After a four-year bear market, some buyers are jumping back on the housing horse, and in recent months, Vancouver's median home prices
